

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A connector includes: a plurality of terminals fixedly attached to an end portion of a plurality of wires and configured to be connected to the terminals of the equipment, respectively; a housing configured to retain the plurality of terminals and to be fit into the mounting hole; and a shielding shell having conductive characteristic and fixedly attached to an end portion of a cylindrical shielding member enclosing the plurality of wires collectively, and configured to be connected to the shielding casing.